Description

The Tritone is the evolution of the Ariston and began as a boat on the high seas, with a hull powerful, safe and fast. Perfect for short cruises to navigate safely, thanks to the twin engines and the capacity of the tanks that allow less than 8 hours of sail. They were built a total of only 258 units and from lines of Tritone born then the Aquarama. This Riva Tritone was modified "Aperto" after production by an important restorer, in 2003 was kept by the current owners which entrusted the restoration work to the one of world authority on Rivas in 2009. Work carried out being; scraping of all old paint, sanding and re- painting and varnishing it in 22 layers of varnish. Replacing hull plywood, west-system treatment. Replacing the upholstery of the seats, pranksters, floors, bunk, cabriolet capote and boat-cover. Restoration of all gauges, electrical equipment and fuel tanks. Chrome plating of all the brass parts. Overhauled of the original engines to "0" hours. That Tritone is in great condition, further info on request.
